Murray-Kauffman.

The marriage of Miss Barbara Kauffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kauffman, and Mr. Lewis Newton Murray of Dunkirk, N. Y., took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Airle, the country home of the bride's parents, on the Military road.

The gardens surrounding the house were abloom with flowers, making an ideal setting for the ceremony, which was performed in the rustic pergola at the head of the stone steps leading into the garden.

Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, read the betrothal service beneath a canopy of vines studded with pink and white peonies.

A stringed orchestra played while the guests assembled in the garden around the pool, which was encircled with pansies, and heralded the coming of the bride with the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin."

As the first strains were heard, the bridesmaids appeared at the head of the veranda steps and led the procession across the lawn into the pergola. The maid of honor followed immediately preceding the bride, who was escorted and later given in marriage by her father.

Mr. Murray and his best man, Mr. Silas W. Howland of New York, awaited them in the pergola. The bride wore a lovely gown of white tulle over white satin, the skirt made very full with the overdress falling in deep points and a border of rose point lace.

The V-necked bodice had a medallion collar of tulle and was finished with a deep dounce of exquisite rose point lace.

Her court train of satin was caught at the top of the soft folded girde and she wore a tulle veil becomingly arranged with a coronet of orange blossoms.

An arm bouquet of white sweet peas and lilacs of the valley was carried.

Miss Orpha Gorman of Buffalo, N. Y., niece of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor, and she wore a ruffled gown of white tulle, each ruffle piped with cream tulle and the skirt made over a hoop.

The bodice was of tulle with tulle sleeves and a full of tulle outlined the V-neck.

She wore a pink tulle hat trimmed in pink roses with pink ribbon streamers weighted at the ends with rosebuds.

Her bouquet was of sweetheart roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Bryan, Miss Frances Carpenter, Miss Helen Fay and Miss Mabel Grandin, made a picturesque group in their gowns of cream Russian silk net with jackets and penguins of pale pink tulle. The bouquets of white flowers were trimmed with bands of tulle.

They wore garden hats of pink georgette crepe, trimmed with tulle ruffles of the same shade and finished at the back with loops of narrow pink velvet ribbon.

Their bouquets were loose clusters of gladioli, blue larkspur and pink sweet peas gathered in the garden at Airle.

The ceremony, at which only the relatives, out-of-town guests and a few intimate friends were present, was followed by a large reception, when the official life of the capital and also its resident society were brilliantly represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Kauffman, parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Montgomery Gorman of Buffalo, brothers of the bridegroom, assisted the newly married couple in receiving Mrs. Kauffman wore a gown of white embroidered tulle, and Mrs. Gorman wore a blue chiffon and straw hat trimmed with white feathers.

Mrs. Gorman wore an effective white net and lace gown with a girde of lavender mauve and a white picture hat trimmed with lavender flowers.

She wore a shoulder cape of black and a black picture hat edged with black lace and trimmed with gaura.

Mrs. R. M. Kauffman, sister-in-law of the bride, was in flowered chiffon with a white tulle hat trimmed with pink roses.

Mrs. Royal C. Colman wore a beautiful gown of gray chiffon embroidered in crystals. Her large gray hat was trimmed with gray feathers, tipped with purple, and she wore a corsage bouquet of orchids.

The wedding party were served in a marquee on the lawn. The table was adorned with a large centerpiece of white peonies and roses.

Plaques of pink peonies adorned the buffet tables on the lawn from which the other guests were served.

During the afternoon there was dancing on the spacious verandas surrounding the house.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Murray left for a short wedding trip, the latter wearing a suit of chestnut brown tulle, the jacket embroidered with roses and beads on the collar and cuffs, with the waist of ecru lace and tulle. The hat was of horsehair trimmed with flowers and foliage and faced with ecru georgette crepe.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray will reside in Dunkirk, N. Y.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Montgomery Gorman of Buffalo, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom; Miss Orpha Gorman of Buffalo; Mr. William Colman Murray, Mrs. Shirley C. Colman and Mr. and Mrs. George R. Nixon, all of Dunkirk, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Royal C. Colman and Mr. and Mrs. John T. Truesdell, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Added to a long list of events which have brought Latin American diplomats into unusual prominence in Washington society in the past few months is the wedding yesterday of Miss Sara Raybaud, daughter of the military attaché of the Argentine embassy and Mme. Raybaud, and her countryman, Mr. Abel Ezeiza.

The wedding present was regal in their beauty and value. The pearl necklace given to the bride by the bridegroom, had a pendant set with two large diamonds of matchless beauty. This, the bride wore when she entertained at the wedding party at the Argentine embassy and Mme. Raybaud, the bride's mother, presented the bride with a set of silver vases, presented by the Italian ambassador and Countess Macchi di Celere.

Scherbaty, has gone to New York. They are at the Plaza, and will soon sail to spend some time in Russia before going to their new posts.

The ambassador of Brazil and Mme. da Gama will leave Washington tomorrow for New York, making the journey by automobile. Mme. da Gama will visit Heron Hall, her estate at Long Branch, where the summer embassy is to be located, and later, and the ambassador will join a party going to Chicago for the republican convention.
